

WILSON FRIEND TO BIG BUSINESS

President Disavows Enmity of Party to Industry.

ISSUES STRONG STATEMENT

Senate Warned It Cannot Afford to Brand Trade Leaders as Unfit for Reserve Board Members — Most Financiers, He Asserts, Are "Honest and Patriotic."

Washington, July 9.—Declaring it would be unfair to regard the Democratic party as the enemy of big or little business, President Wilson gave out a statement in support of Paul Warburg of New York and Thomas D.
Jones of Chicago, his nominees for the federal reserve board.

In his statement the president says:
"It would be particularly unfair to the Democratic party and to the senate itself to regard it as the enemy of business, big or little. I am sure that it does not regard a man as an object of suspicion merely because he has been connected with great business enterprises."

"It knows that the business of the country has been chiefly promoted in recent years by enterprises organized on a great scale, and that the vast majority of the men connected with what we have come to call big business are honest, incorruptible and patriotic.
The country may be certain that it is clear to members of the senate as it is clear to all thoughtful men that those who have tried to make big business what it ought to be are the men to be encouraged and honored whenever they respond without reserve to the call of public service."

Set Example of Patriotism.
"I predict with the greatest confidence that nothing done by the Democratic majority of the senate of the United States will be of a sort to throw suspicion upon such men. Mr.
Jones and Mr. Warburg, in manifesting their willingness to make personal sacrifices and put their great experience and ability at the service of the government, without thought of personal advantage, in the organization of a great reform, which promises to be so serviceable to the nation, are setting an example of patriotism and of public spirit which the whole country admires."

"It is the obvious business of statesmanship at this turning point in our development to recognize ability and character, wherever it has been displayed and unite every force for the upbuilding of legitimate business along the new lines which are now clearly indicated for the future."

LITTLE GIRL KILLED PLAYING IN HAY MOW

BLANCHE, 8 YEAR OLD DAUGH-TER OF MR. AND MRS. CHAS.
DIMICK, IS KILLED.

FELL 25 FEET TO CEMENT FLOOR

Little Girl Slipped Through Hole in Floor of Mow and Struck Headfirst on Concrete Floor Below.

Blanche, the eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Dimick, fell from the hay mow in the barn at the home of her parents on the old Hughes farm, four miles north of this city late Wednesday afternoon and received injuries which caused her death at 11:30 o'clock that night.

The tragic accident, which robbed
the home of a bright and happy little girl, occurred while she was watching over and caring for her smaller sister, aged five. The two children had been watching the men of the farm mow away hay and when approaching the opening in the mow floor to come down the ladder a bunch of hay under her feet slipped and she was precipitated headlong through the opening.

She struck heavily on the cement floor 25 feet below, alighting on her head and shoulders, and was rendered unconscious, from which condition she never rallied. As soon as possible medical aid was summoned from this city and two physicians responded and did all in their power to save the life of the little one, but a badly fractured skull and severe concussion of the brain made their efforts futile, and the child passed away at 11:30 o'clock last night.

The funeral will be held Friday at 3 o'clock at the church at Pennsylvania Corners.

Inquest This Morning.

Coroner Aiken of Ogle county —
the farm is in Grand Detour township—was notified of the accident and he decided that an inquest was necessary, arriving at the Dimick home this morning to impanel the jury and conduct the inquisition.

nounced in last evening's paper, the change being made to facilitate and hasten the work.

have been received from the state highway commission by County Superintendent of Highways Neighbour for at $1.25 per barrel, making the total estimated cost of such material, $3,923.60.

The total estimated cost of work,
including the cement to be furnished by the state is $21,008.00; the total estimated cost of the work by contract including labor and materials exclusive of that furnished by the state is $17,045.

FORMER MAYOR BUSSE OF CHICAGO IS DEAD

PROMINENT IN ILLINOIS POLI-TICS FOR MANY YEARS—HELD IMPORTANT OFFICES.

STARTED POLITICS EARLY

Was Interested in Politics as Soon as He Could Vote—Worked His Way to Foremost Ranks.

Chicago, July 9.—Fred A. Busse, for a score of years a leader in state politics in Illinois, is dead. He has been state senator, state treasurer, postmaster of Chicago and Mayor of that city.

Fred A. Busse was a prominent figure in republican politics in Chicago and Illinois for nearly a score of years. In conjunction with James Pease he controlled the republican organizations of the north side wards.
He was born in Chicago March 3rd, 1866, of German parentage. While big of body and brusque in manner he was extremely sensitive and modest and possessed the quality of making friends. He was a good mixer in politics and was popular among the political workers of the wards he controlled. In his boyhood he attended the Chicago public schools and later he drove a wagon for his father, who was in the hardware business. He organized a teaming company, was in the street cleaning business and later in the coal business.

He dabbled in politics from the time he was able to vote. In 1891 he served a term as North town clerk.
Then he was employed as a bailiff in the state courts and as a deputy sheriff. In 1894 he was elected a representative to the general assembly of Illinois and served three terms. In 1898 he was sent to the state senate and became a leader in the republican state machine. He was elected treasurer of Illinois in 1902 and in 1905 was appointed postmaster of Chicago by President Roosevelt.

Two years later he was elected as mayor of the city, being the first official to serve the newly authorized four year term. Busse was sick in bed of injuries received in a railroad wreck when the nomination was rendered him and he remained bed riden until after the election.

He was the first German-American to head the municipal government and the second native Chicagoan to be chosen to that office. In 1908 he married Miss Josephine Lee of Chicago.

STARS' PROTEST NOT ALLOWED BY LEAGUE

RULES PROVIDE NO APPEAL FROM DECISION INVOLVING JUDGEMENT.

INTEREST IN WEEK END GAMES

If Busters Beat I. N. U. Saturday, Sunday's Winners Will Take the Lead.

At meeting of the board of directors of the Dixon Baseball and Amusement Association was held Wednesday evening at the office of President G. G. McCarty to consider a protest filed by Manager White-bread of the Stars on a decision of Umpire Hogan in last Saturday afternoon's City League game between the Stars and the I. N. U. teams.

Manager Whitebread maintained that a fair ball from Eckert's bat in the fifth inning had been called foul by the umpire, whereas if the ball had been called fair, as he claimed it should have been, the Stars would have scored at least one more run and possibly two.

The directors, however, could find no grounds for allowing the protest, deciding the case under Rule 43 of the code as adopted by the National Association of Baseball Clubs, which provides: There shall be no appeal from any decision of either umpire on the ground that he was not correct in his conclusion as to whether a batted ball was fair or foul, or on any other play involving accuracy of judgment, and no decision rendered by him shall be reversed, except that he be convinced that it is in violation of one of the rules.

Week-End Games.

With the disposal of the protest
the interest of the fans will again center on the games to be played Saturday and Sunday at Lincoln park, which may result in a material change in the standing of the clubs, which are now bunched so closely with but a single game separating the leaders and the cellar occupants.

On Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the I. N. U. and the Busters contests between the Stars and the Brunswicks will step into first place. Accordingly, with the race as close as it is, some great interest
may be expected.

BUY BACK AMBOY ELECTRIC ROAD

COMMITTEE REPRESENTING THE STOCKHOLDERS PURCHASED LINE AT MASTER'S SALE.

The Northern Illinois Electric railway was yesterday sold to H. W. Hillison, S. L. Shaw and Reinhart Aschenbrenner, a committee representing the stockholders of the corporation, the sale being made under court orders by Special Master in Chancery
M. C. Keller of this city.

When the road went into a receivership some time ago the stockholders of the line, which include many of the most well to do farmers in the territory, appointed the three above named men to represent them in all litigation and to purchase the property when it was sold.

Accordingly, after the sale yesterday, a meeting of the stockholders was held and the rehabilitation and operation of the road was planned and is now under consideration by the officers. The line runs from Amboy to a point in Bradford township.

ROCKFORD IS YEAR BEHIND IN FINANCES

MAYOR BENNETT'S TOWN HAS ISSUED $223,000 WORTH OF
TIME ORDERS.

SINCE FIRST OF THE YEAR

Loan of $100,000, Due Year Hence,
Was Authorized Monday Night.

Rockford, Ill., July 9.—A resolution offered by Chairman Smith of the council finance committee Monday evening provides for the issue of time orders totaling $160,- 000, payable a year hence and drawing four and one-fourth per cent interest. The resolution was adopted.

The warrants are to be taken by the New York brokerage firm known as Bond & Goodwin, with whom City Treasurer Taylor has been having some correspondence.

This issue will make a total of $223,000 in time orders since the first of the year.

The city has been paying five per cent interest on time orders and has been experiencing difficulty in disposing of same even at that high rate. The acceptance of the issue by the New York firm is taken to indicate an easing up of the money market, willingness on the part of the financial kings to accept a smaller rate of interest on their investments where the security is gilt-edged.

It is figured that the city will save in the neighborhood of $1,200 in interest by the reduction of the interest rate of three-fourths of one per cent.

The borrow is explainable by the fact that Rockford has been run on time orders for some years back. The income from taxes each year has always been spent the year previous and no effort has been made on the part of the council to start something along the line of "catching up."

If the city could once start with a clean slate, time orders would not be necessary, and the item of interest expense would be eliminated.

GOES FROM FRYING PAN INTO THE FIRE

GEO. REITZEL GRADUATES FROM OGLE COUNTY JAIL TO FEDERAL COURT.

Oregon, July 9.—George Reitzel, who hails from the Pine Creek bottoms, was taken to Freeport Wednesday last week by Deputy United States Marshal Hahnke on a warrant, charging him with violating the white slave act. Reitzel was indicted at the October term of the federal court in Freeport, but owing to the fact that he was serving a term in jail in Ogle county after being found guilty on a charge of assault with intent to kill, the warrant was not served upon him. His term of sentence in the Ogle county jail expired, and he was released from custody. As soon as this was learned, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest and he was again arrested.

Reitzel appeared before Commissioner Green in Freeport and bonds of $2,000 were demanded. He could not furnish the same and was taken to jail.

Reitzel is charged with violating the white slave act. It is alleged that he went from Polo to Minneapolis with a woman named Myrtle Smice, who deserted her own family, which included a babe four months old, because of him.

OSCAR STANAGE

McGhee says:

For breakin' out in places new, I hand it to that Tiger crew from automobile town. You tie 'em up with data rope an'—zio!—they simply take your dope an' turn it upside down. Ol' Hughie Jennings takes the blame for most o' this sort o' game an' most of it is his. But Oscar Stanage helps a lot an' he don't wanta be forgot—he's part of Hughie's biz.

This Jennings has some temper. An' now an' then he lets it go instead of holdin' tight. When he goes up it's Oscar's cue to stick his cold spoon in the stew an' see that things go right. The boxmen work at Oscar's will, no pitcher's ever yanked until Ol' Oscar gives the sign. He warms 'em up an' picks 'em out each afternoon before the bout an' keeps the rooks in line.

Don't get the hunch, though, that he's through that coachin's all the gent can do. He ain't no passin' vef. Nos ood car! Out behind the plate he's on the job an' goin' great—he's good for some years yet. For work he's just a reg'lar hog an' base thieves think him some watch dog—his pegs still swift an' true. My tip is—that coachin's all the gent can do. He ain't no passin' yet. Not Os—then watch his crew.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."

—Miss AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 2361 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."

—Miss ESTELLE MAGUIRE, 110 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

THE OTHER WORLD.

It has long been a question as to what the conditions in the other world are, but we are now glad to know that the whole problem has been solved. Mrs. Lucy W. Tuck of Roxbury, Mass. now in her 85th year, has been a practicing physician all her life in that city. She had a son, Wadsworth Cecil Tuck, a graduate of the Harvard medical school. Young Tuck died, but in the spirit world he continued his labor and for a period of ten years wrote letters to his mother describing conditions in the new life. Lately something has occurred to interrupt these communications, and so the old lady says she is waiting patiently to join her son to help carry on his work. In order to give the world some idea of affairs she has turned these letters over to a friend of hers, Miss Sarah Louise Ford, of Dorchester, who has published them, and from these missives we glean the following, relates the Peoria Star:

Spirits are tangible substance, refined matter, the letters say, and the soul world parallels the earthly sphere in many respects. Souls are subject to spiritual conditions, and as a physician the soul of young Dr. Tuck goes out among the hospitals of spiritland treating physical disease. There are many mansions in the world beyond this, Dr. Tuck says, and he speaks of a "pretty parlor" awaiting his mother. Spirits do not sit on clouds playing harps, he says, there is work for them to do.

Dr. Tuck says there are soul marriages only in heaven and that mild babies are born. He announces that he and his grandfather frequently visit theatres and picture galleries. The people in heaven all live in houses with large yards filled with flowers. The doctor says he has a garden grown by electricity.

He is quoted as saying from the spirit land: "The physicians of earth do not fill their duty, for too many are born here out of shape. I saw a baby coming up that was a cold, blue, vapor body and has not yet warmed into life, but remains as a chicken in an egg, being cared for by physicians. Possibly they may save it so it will not fade away."

I find that some forms are charged with a great amount of potassium, some are charged with iron, some with aluminum, some with gold; so, if chemically examined, we could almost say an iron man or a gold man. I find every organ has a meaning. The lungs mean liberty.

How to get the fumes of tobacco from the vapor of shape is a great question here. Liquor is not so hard to exterminate from cells as is the sense or habit of tobacco. Oh, if people only knew the discoloration it gives to the flames of the spirit they would try to check its ravages."

DR. EVANS ON GARBAGE.

Dr. W. A. Evans, an eminent Chicago physician whose writings on health matters, civic and otherwise, are read all over the nation, has some pertinent remarks on the garbage proposition in his department of the Chicago Tribune this week. His declaration regarding the extravagance of having every householder dispose of his own garbage by having it hauled away, no matter how small the town, accords with the stand the Telegraph has taken, that Dixon should have a garbage removal and disposal system, paid for out of the general tax.

We feel that Dixon is large enough to have an incineration plant. Dr. Evans says:

Every household produces garbage. Every town has its garbage problem. In smaller cities the people are apt to leave their garbage question alone—that is, as a municipal question. The householders as individuals contract by the month to have their garbage removed. The amount paid in a year is much higher than the per capita cost of garbage disposal in cities with a municipal system.

Greely advises small cities to have a collection system and to dispose of the garbage by burying it or feeding it to hogs. These methods are usually carried out as miserable nuisances, not because they have to be but just because they are not carried out rightly.

Burying garbage costs about 45 cents a ton. About one acre and a half of ground is required for each daily ton. The soil used is ready for re-use in two years. If the soil is exceedingly heavy the acreage must be three times the daily tonnage of garbage, and the used soil must not be used in less than four years. The garbage must be thinly spread and buried. The burying must not be too deep for air and bacteria.

Where the garbage is fed to hogs the following conditions should be met. There must be 75 hogs per daily ton of garbage. The garbage must be heated to the boiling temperature. The farm must be equipped with heating vats and concrete floors. The hogs must be kept in pens with concrete floors. The municipality by frequent inspection must see that the pens are washed clean and that the hogs are vaccinated against cholera.

When a city passes the 20,000 inhabitants mark it should put in a garbage incinerator, destructor, or reduction plant. An incinerating plant is the cheapest of the three. An incinerator burns garbage at a temperature of about 800 degrees Fahrenheit. The average cost of building such a plant is about $500 for each ton of daily capacity. The cost of coal necessary is from 50 cents to $1 per ton of garbage.

Low temperature incinerators are liable to produce offensive gases and are sometimes objected to when located in thickly populated neighborhoods.

If a city is somewhat larger it will want a destructor. This type of burner costs about $1,000 a ton to install. The first cost puts such an installation out of the reach of the smaller cities. The cost of destroying garbage in this way is no greater, if as great, as it is with a low temperature incinerator.

AS THE CASE MAY BE.

An Arkansas newspaper publishes the following extract from its files of 1876, which should hold good until this day: "Notice is hereby given that if any man's horse or mule, as the case may be, gets in these here oats, I will cut his or her tail off, as the case may be. I's a Christian man and pays my taxes, Dam a man that will let his stock run loose, say I."

The One Theme
BY WALT MASON

You talk of Pope and Byron, of Milton, Keats and Scott, and I admit I'm tirin' of all that kind of rot; you say the world is richer since Shakespeare sung his lays; to Jones, our southpaw pitcher, you give no word of praise. Through innin' after innin' he pitched a hitless game, and yet you come here grinnin' to talk of Wordsworth's fame. You speak of Alexander, and say he was a brick, that storied old commander who sighed for worlds to lick; I fear there's nothing in it, this clawing o'er his bones, and at the present minute my thoughts are all of Jones. Your musty ancient heroes were doubtless wearing bells, your Hannibals and Neros, your dauntless William Tells, but they are dead and planted, long since they met their fate, and I am now enchanted with Jones, whose curves are great. Of statesmen and of thinkers you come to spiel a while, and they are surely clinkers when tommyrot's in style, but statesmanship is musty, and thinkers are a bore, when Jones, the true and trusty, is making batsmen sore. Forget the printed pages, the wreaths and halls of fame, forget the bards and sages, and come and see the game!

LARGER DINING CARS ON NORTHWESTERN

NEW CARS WILL SEAT THIRTY-SIX PEOPLE—NEW LINEN AND SHAVER.

New modern dining cars are being installed on a number of the C. & N. W. Ry. limited trains.

The cars are of all steel construction and measure 82 feet long and seat 36 people at one time. Regular dining cars heretofore in use on most lines seat 30 people at one time.

All the new cars are finished in polished mahogany and are brilliantly lighted by the indirect electric lighting system.

New linen and silver of pleasing pattern and standard maintained by this road have been supplied for each car. The kitchens and broilers are larger than in the old dining cars and other features have been planned with the view of supplying quick and efficient service.

Chicago newspaper men are optimistic cusses—when the clubs are winning. The teams they were panning a few weeks ago are now slated for three champions in any many leagues.

Prize fighting may not be as rough as it used to be, but there is more money in it.

On Saturday afternoon, August 1, the flag pole presented to Dubuque by Charles Coniskey will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. Congressman Maurice Connolly will tear off the open-air oratory on that occasion. We have no objection to Duquque dedicating the pole, but wouldn't care they going to hang on it?

EIGHT ARE REPORTED LOST IN ARTIC PARTY

Earlier Account of Stefansson Expedition Safely Incorrect.

Ottawa, Ont., July 9.—Eight members of the Stefansson arctic expedition, who were believed to be on Wrangel Island, off the coast of Alaska, with the rest of the Karluk party, which was reported safe more than a month ago, are now thought to be lost, according to a report which Deputy Minister of Marine Desbarrate received from Captain Bartlett in Nome. Bartlett commanded the Karluk.

The previous report, from which it was inferred that the whole party had reached Wrangel Island, neglected to mention two parties of four, which set out ten days after the Karluk sank—one for Herald Island and the other for an unknown shore, dimly discernible through the Arctic night. Neither of these parties has been heard from.

The supporting party which accompanied the first party returned and reported that progress had been stopped by open water three miles from shore. Four men were left with provisions on the edge of the ice waiting for a chance to land. That was the last heard of them.

The four were: Officer Alexander Anderson of Inverkeithing, Fifeshire, Scotland; Second Officer Charles Bartlett, Seaman John Bredy and Seaman Archibald King, all of Victoria, B. C.

ORDERS SALE OF FARM.

Judge Farrand in the Circuit Court this morning entered a decree for sale in the partition suit involving the farm property of the late Ida Elmore Ramsey of China township. It is situated about a mile west of Franklin Grove, on the Lincoln Highway, and is said to be a very valuable piece of property. About $40,000 is involved, it is estimated.

DIXON BOY FOUND BY SI-KO SEARCHER

MAX. HUNTING FOR "WONDERFUL CHILD," CONSIDERS THOMAS HOLAHAN.

In the Sunday paper of the Chicago Sunday Tribune, Si-Ko in his search for the "wonder child" of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin has this to say about Master Thomas F. Holahan, only child of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Holahan of 202 E. Chamberlain street, this city:

"Thomas F. Holahan—This boy will be fond of home, parents, relations, friends, pets, and animals, and will become patriotic. He is quick to observe, keen to remember, thoughtful and reflective, kind of heart, strong in feelings, tender and conscientious. He will be interested in home building, in manufacturing, or handling things for children and woman. He may develop in the line of fashion and designing work for women and children or in home decoration lines. He is a promising lovely boy."

During the time that Si-Ko has been searching for the most promising child in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin he has received so many letters that he has been kept exceedingly busy studying them and selecting the children who appear to have the best chances for greatness. The search is now drawing toward its close, and the child that Si-Ko believes will be a future genius will shortly be chosen. To this child will be given a moving picture film showing him playing and studying, in all his various activities, so that many years from now when he has grown to be a man of world-wide prominence, his parents may see again their little one of the present day. Statistics indicate that but few children will reach a position of importance.

Those who are acquainted with Master Thomas will feel that he has a very excellent chance to be the favored child, as he is a very intelligent little fellow and charming in his ways and manners. He is very keen and his perceptiveness is remarkable.

FORD SAYS NOTHING AILS THE BUSINESS

DETROIT MANUFACTURER TELLS WILSON THAT PESSIMISM IS CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

Washington, D. C., July 9.—Optimistic views of business conditions were presented to President Wilson today by Henry Ford, the Detroit automobile manufacturer, during an hour's conference.

"There is absolutely nothing the matter with business," Ford told the president. He said that the only trouble is that some people are pessimistic, and that if everyone would cheer up, the calamity talk would stop immediately.

CHICAGO BUSINESS MEN SEE PRESIDENT

Executive Found "Considerate and Open-minded"

Washington, July 9.—President Wilson held his second conference in the series of engagements which he has made with the representatives of big business, conferring with the representatives of large business interests in Chicago.

The Chicago business men came away from the White House impressed with the treatment they had received. President Wilson, in the course of his talk, indicated that he will abandon those sections of the Clayton Omnibus anti-trust bill which amounts to define unfair trade practices such as price discriminations as a part of the administration's anti-trust program.

Among the Chicago committee were John V. Farwell, J. B. Barnes of Marshall Field & Company, Thomas Creigh of the Cudahy Packing company and L. A. Goddard of the state bank of Chicago.

The president issued this statement at the conclusion of the interview:

"The president today expressed his pleasure at having been consulted by the group of gentlemen who represent the Chicago Chamber of Commerce and said that he felt the conference had been mutually instructive and helpful."

CHURCHES INTERESTED IN EVENING SERVICE

Nearly all the churches in the city are interested in the three open-air services being conducted in John Dixon Park on Sunday evenings at 7 o'clock. The second service will be held next Sunday evening with Rev. A. J. Holland, pastor of the Presbyterian church, as speaker. The committee in charge has arranged for 100 more chairs which will add to the comfort of those attending. The music is inspirational, the surroundings beautiful, and the fellowships helpful. The public is invited to enjoy the hour. The hour is 7 and not 7:30, as many had supposed.

DELICIA & POLLY AT THE FAMILY THEATRE.

IMPORTS HEAVIER EXPORTS SMALLER

UNDER NEW TARIFF EFFECTIVE
LAST OCTOBER, ACCORD-ING TO REPORTS.

Washington, July 9.—Foreign manufacturers sent into the United States during the first eight months of the new tariff system 8.8 per cent more of their finished product than they did under the old. This was pointed to the other night by Secretary Redfield as ample demonstration that there was no ground for the fears of American factory owners that they would be driven from business by the Democratic tariff.

Out of a total decrease in exports for the eight months of $145,703, 640 more than $128,000,000 was in foodstuffs and manufactures for further use in manufacturing.

Total imports for the eight months were $1,288,656,041, compared with $1,233,519,365 for the same period last year. Free merchandise for the two periods was, respectively $800, 214,038 and $683,015,455. Total exports were $1,640,367,305, against $1,786,070,945.

Imports for May, 1914, amounted to $164,209,515, compared with $133,723,713 a year ago. Exports were $161,732,619, a decrease of 16.9 per cent since the previous May.

PRINCESS THEATRE.

Tonight the Princess theater will show the first installment of "The Million Dollar Mystery." This is the wonderful Thanouser feature that has taken the cities by storm and packed the theaters wherever shown.

Synopsis of the First Chapter. Stanley Hargrave, millionaire, having joined what he believes to be a great secret socialistic movement, finds that in reality he has been trapped by the Black Hundred. After a miraculous escape from the den of the brilliant thieves he lives the life of a recluse for eighteen years. One night, surrendering to a restless spirit of rebellion Hargrave enters a Broadway restaurant and there comes face to face with the Black Hundred's leader, Braine.

After the meeting, during which neither man apparently recognizes the other, Hargrave hurries to his magnificent Riverdale home and lays plans for making his escape from the country. He writes a letter to the girls' school in New Jersey where 18 years before he had mysteriously left on the doorstep of the institution his tiny baby daughter—named "Florence Gray."

by the note attached to the bundle—and arranges that she be sent to him at once. He also pays a visit to the hangar of a daredevil aviator.

Braine and members of his band surround Hargrave's home at night, but as they enter the house the watchers outside see a balloon leave the roof. The safe is found empty—the million which Hargrave was known to have drawn that day gone. While the rogues are rummaging about the house, venting their spite, one of the men from outside bursts in. "The old man is dead and the money is at the bottom of the ocean," he cries. "We punctured her. She's gone!"

FAMILY THEATRE

Delicia & Polly are two girls who sing and dance their way into favor at the Family theatre where they will be seen four days beginning tonight. They are clever and entertain the masses and the classes. Their dancing is a picture of grace and agility and is interspersed with selections of popular songs, making a delightful offering. The program also contains Smiletta Bros. & Mora, three gentlemen presenting a novelty on horizontal bars which is a treat for lovers of this style of entertainment. They are famous for their funmaking proclivities and while many difficult and meritorious feats are performed on the bars the comedy of the offering is a predominating feature.

Pictures tonight are: "The Counterfeiter"; "Broncho Billy's Cunning"; the "Outlaws at Work" and "A Snakeville Romance."

DAN CUPID KEPT PACKY FROM TITLE

PROMISED BRIDE-TO-BE THAT HE WOULD NEVER, NEVER FIGHT AGAIN.

Chicago, July 9.—A master boxer, a hard puncher, a clever ring general, in fact, the very epitome of ring class and cleverness, Packy McFarland, the stockyards idol, is leaving the fight game without ever having held a ring championship.

Packy is to be married soon, and has promised his bride-to-be that he will never, never fight again, so any hopes he might ever have had in connection with championship belts are gone forever.

Another reason why he will never be able to tell his grandchildren how he won a title is that he never has been able to make a stipulated weight. McFarland never was a lightweight, and he rapidly outgrew the welterweights. There was a chance that he would develop into a middleweight when Daniel Cupid intervened. Once Packy made the lightweight limit. But it wasn't for a fight. A New York scribe or press agent, there being no substantial difference, was the genius behind the turn. Whether Packy starved two or three weeks in order to come down to "thirty-three" was never made public.

The stockyards stalwart established his class as a welterweight when he took Ray Bronson on in an Indianapolis encounter. Bronson was stout and strong in those days. He was the logical candidate for welterweight honors. But in that bout Packy outboxed the Hoosier and out-fought him as well. The mere fact that Bronson "was forced to extend himself to win" was a sufficient proof that the Chicago crack won quite decisively.

McFarland could hit, and hit hard, when the occasion warranted such brutal effort, but cleverness was his Prince Albert. Having made blocking a science, the boxer from the burg of breezes was harder to hit than Walter Johnson's fast ball.

To have handed Packy a discolored optic was a badge of distinction of which any boxer, great or otherwise, might well be proud.

Accordingly, Kid Burns went down in history as an exceptional ring notable when he creped McFarland's eye in a New York debate on Feb. 6, 1912.

It was the first black eye McFarland had met since his debut as a professional pugilist, in 1904. You can judge for yourself just how dexterous the phantom was.

The Secret of Lonesome Cove

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

Copyright, 1912, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"I should like to know just how much you know."

"An offer. I will tell you whenever you are ready to tell me all that you know. I think we are mutually in need of each other."

"I wish you were at the bottom of that pit," retorted the other grimly. "You and your scoundrel of a friend with you."

"Thank you for myself," said Sedgwick. "If you were twenty years younger I would break every bone in your body for that."

"Steady, Frank," put in Kent. "Judge no man by his speech, who has been through what Alexander Blair has been through tonight. Mr. Blair," he added, "you've refused my offer. It is still open. And as an extra I will undertake for Mr. Sedgwick and myself that this night's affair shall be kept secret. And now, the next thing is to cover the evidence. Spades, Frank."

The two men took up their tools. "I'll spell you," said Alexander Blair, and they hurriedly reentered the sack of clean sand which bore the name of Wilfrid Blair.

"And now," said Chester Kent, petting his blistered palms as the last shovelful of dirt was tamped down. "I'll take you back with me, Mr. Sheriff, to Sedgwick's place and do the best I can for you till the morning. About 6 o'clock we'll find you unconscious below the cliffs where you fell in the darkness. Eh?"

Despite his pain the sheriff grinned. "I guess that's as good as the next lie," he acquiesced. "You fight fair, professor."

"Then answer me a fair question. What were you doing at Hedgerow house tonight?"

"Why, you see," drawled the official, "I saw you fishin' that stream, and it came to my mind that you was castin' around for more than trout that wasn't there. But I didn't hardly think you'd come so soon, and I was asleep when the noise of the spade on the coffin woke me."

"Bad work and clumsy," commented Kent, with a scowl. "Come along. My car will carry three. Sedgwick can sit on the floor. Good night, Mr. Blair. All aboard, Frank."

There was no answer.

"What became of Sedgwick?" demanded Kent.

"He was here half a minute ago. I'll swear to that," muttered the sheriff.

Kent stared anxiously about him. "Frank, Frank," he called half under his breath.

"Not too loud," besought Alexander Blair.

The clouds closed over the moon. Somewhere in the open a twig cracked. Sedgwick had disappeared.

Hope had surged up sudden and fierce in Sedgwick's heart at the gleam of a candle in Hedgerow house. Silently he laid his revolver beside his spade and slipped into the shadows.

He heard Kent's impatient query. He saw him as he picked up the re-linquished weapon and examined it, and, estimating the temper of his friend, was sure that the scientist would not stop to search for him. In this he was right. Taking the sheriff by the arm, Kent guided him through the creek and into the darkness beyond. Mr. Blair, walking with heavy steps and fallen head, made his way back to the house. Sedgwick heard the door close behind him. A light shone for a time in the second story. It disappeared. With infinite caution, Sedgwick made the detour, gained the rear of the house, and skirting the north wing, stepped forth in the bright moonlight, the presence of passion throbbing wildly in his breast.

She sat at the window, head high to him, bowed in roses. Her face was turned slightly away. Her long, fine hands lay, inert, on the sill. Her face, purity itself in the pure moonlight, seemed dimmed with weariness and strain, a flower glowing through a mist.

With a shock of remembrance that was almost grotesque, Sedgwick realized that he had no name by which to call her. So he called her by the name that is Love's own.

She did not change her posture. But her lips parted. Her lids drooped and quivered. She was as one in a lovely dream.

He stepped toward her and spoke again.

"You!" she cried, and her voice breaking from a whisper into a thrill of pure music, "You!"

Rending, he pressed his lips on her hands and felt them tremble beneath his kiss. They were withdrawn and fluttered for the briefest moment at his temples. Then she spoke, hurriedly and softly.

"You must go—at once! At once!"

"When I have just found you?"

"If you have any care for me—for my happiness, for my good name—go away from this house of dread."

"What?" said Sedgwick sharply. "Of dread? What do you do here, then?"

"Suffer," said she. Then bit her lips. "No, no, I didn't mean it. It is only that the mystery of it—I am unstrung and weak. Tomorrow all will be right. Only go."

"I will," said Sedgwick firmly. "And you shall go with me."

"Where?"

He caught her hand again and held it to his heart—"To "See the gold and the silver fade. And the last light fly into the last night," he whispered.

"Don't!" she begged. "Not that! It brings back that week too poignantly. Oh, my dear, please, please go."

"Listen," he said. "Heart of my heart, I don't know what curse hangs over this house, but this I do know, that I cannot leave you here. Come with me now. I will find some place for you tonight, and tomorrow we will be married."

With a sharp movement she shrank back from him.

"Married! Tomorrow!" The words seemed to choke her. "Don't you know who I am?"

Fear chilled her mounting blood as Kent's analysis of the probabilities came back to him.

"If you are married already," he said unsteadily, "it—it would be better for me that Kent had let him shoot."

"Who?" she cried. "What has been passing here? You have been in danger?"

"What does it matter?" he returned. "What does anything matter but—"

"Hark!" she broke in, a spasm of terror contracting her face.

Footsteps sounded within. There was the noise of a door opening and closing. Around the turn of the wing Alexander Blair stepped into view. His pistol was still in his hand.

"Still here, sir?" he inquired with an effect of murderous courtesy. "You add spying to your other practices, then?" He took a step forward and saw the girl. "My God, Marjorie!" he cried.

Sedgwick turned white at the cry, but faced the older man steadily.

"I fear, sir," he said, "that I have made a terrible mistake. The blame

"I will," said Sedgwick firmly. "And you shall go with me."

"That is true," said the other thoughtfully. "That still remains to be explained."

"By you," returned the artist. "You speak of your son's wife. To carry out the farce of the sham burial shouldn't you have said his 'widow'?"

"The widow of a day, as you well know," answered Mr. Blair bitterly.

"As I do not know at all. But I think I begin to see light. The rose topazes on the dead woman's neck. Her topazes. That helps to clear it up. The dead woman was some past light of love of Wilfrid Blair's. She came here either to reassert her sway over him or to blackmail him. He gave her his wife's jewels. Then he followed her to the cliffs and killed her, perhaps in a drunken frenzy. And you, Mr. Alexander Blair, to save your son have concealed him somewhere, bribed the sheriff and the medical officer, contrived this false death and burial and are now turning suspicion on a man you know to be innocent further to fortify your position. But what damnable lie have you told her?"

During this exposition Alexander Blair's face was a study in changing emotions. At the close his thin lips curled in the suggestion of a sardonic grin.

"I leave you to the company of your theory, sir," said he, and the door closed sharply after him.

Three hours later, wet and bedraggled, but with a fire at his heart, the nightfarer came to his home and roused Kent from slumber on the studio couch.

In brief outline Sedgwick told of the moonlight interview.

"Do you know," Kent said, "I would not wonder if Blair really thought you the murderer. Yours is a very interesting and ingenious theory. But the fact is that Wilfrid Blair was dead before his father ever learned of the tragedy of Lonesome Cove."

CHAPTER XVI.
Chance Sits In.

SUIT case at his side, Chester Kent stood on the platform of the Martindale Center station waiting for the morning train to Boston. Before him paced Sedgwick, with a face of storm.

"This is something I must do for myself," the artist declared. "Chet, I must see her again," pleaded Sedgwick. "I must!"

"Exhibit that tact and delicacy which you displayed at your last meeting," broke in Kent curtly. "Asking a woman to marry you on the day of her husband's burial!"

"It wasn't her husband's burial," Sedgwick checked his nervous pacing. "Do you think so? You believe she wasn't a party to that ghastly fraud?"

"Certainly not. She attended the funeral ceremony in good faith. In my belief the real circumstances of Blair's death are as unknown to her as they are to you."

"Assuming always that he is dead. Your confidence being so sound, it must be based on something. How did he come to his death?"

"If I knew that I shouldn't be going to Boston to consult an astrologer. And you!"

"I am going back to Hedgerow house," concluded the artist obstinately.

"Do you know Room 571 at the Elyrie?" asked Kent abruptly.

"No. Yes; I do too."

"Walk up to the hotel. Give this card to the clerk. Get the key. Go to that room at once. Lie down on your back with your eyes open and think for one hour by the watch. If at the end of that time you still believe you're right go ahead. Will you do it?"

"Agreed. It's a bargain. But it won't change my mind."

"A bargain's a bargain. It won't need to," said Kent coolly. "By that time, if I have any understanding of Mr. Alexander Blair, he will have put your lady of mystery on the morning train which leaves for Boston by one of the other roads. If not, why, you may take your chance."

"Ticked!" said Sedgwick. "Well, I owe you too much to go back on my agreement. But—see here, Kent. She's going to Boston. You're going to Boston. You can easily find out where the Blairs live. Go to her for me and find—"

"Heaven forbid!" cried Kent piously. "Why?"

"Haven't I told you that I am a timid creature and especially about females? Over seventy I like 'em, and under seven I love 'em. Between I shun 'em. I'll do anything for you but that, my boy," he concluded as the train came rumbling in.

"Then I shall have to follow and look her up myself," returned his friend. "I'll wire you before I come. Goodby."

"By the way," said Kent, leaning out from the car step upon which he had swung himself, "don't be disturbing if you miss that drawing which we bought from Elder Bennett at a bargain."

"Miss it? Why, where is it?"

"In my suit case."

"What's it doing there?"

"Why, you see, it's a sketch for a finished portrait by Elliott, as I suspect, some of the art people in Boston might recognize it. Good luck! I hope not to see you soon—too soon, that is!"

Chance and a deranged railway schedule conspired against the peace of mind of the shy and shrinking Kent. Outside of Boston a few miles is a junction and a crossing. Here Kent's train was held up by some minor accident. Here, too, the train from the north on the other road stopped for orders. Thus it was that Kent, stepping out to take the air, found himself looking into an open Pullman window at a woman's face framed in deepest black.

"Mrs. Blair!"

For once in his life Chester Kent's controlled tongue had broken the leash. Immediately he would have given a considerable sum of money to recall his hasty exclamation. He was in an agony of shyness. But it was too late. The girlish face turned.

"I beg pardon," stammered the man. "Are you Mr. Blair? I'm Mrs. Kent."

At this astonishing announcement, amusement gleamed in the woman's eyes and gave a delicate up twist to the corners of the soft mouth.

"I don't recognize you in your present attire, Mrs. Kent," she murmured.

"No. Of course not. I meant to say—that is, you know"—Kent gathered his forces, resolved desperately to see it through now. "There are things I want to speak to you about. I wish to get on your car."

"Certainly not," replied she decisively. "I do not know you."

"I am a friend of Francis Sedgwick. Try to believe me when I tell you that I wish only to save both of you misunderstanding and suffering—needless misunderstanding and suffering," he added.

"It is too late," she said hopelessly. "Now, what cock and bull story has Alexander Blair told her?" Kent demanded of his mind. "How much does she know or how little?"

The far and forward lurch of the car before him brought him out of his reverie.

"Can I see you in Boston?" he asked hurriedly.

She shook her head. "Not now. I can see no one. And, remember, I do not even know you."

Kent cast about rapidly in his mind as he walked along with the car for some one who might be a common acquaintance. He mentioned the name of a very great psychologist at Harvard. "Do you know him?" he asked.

"Yes. He is my mother's half brother."

"And my valued friend," he cried. "May I get him to bring me?" He was almost running now beside the window.

"Yes," she assented, "if you insist. But I will hear no word of—of your friend."

"I understand. Agreed," called Kent. "Tomorrow morning then."

Kent went direct to Cambridge. He found his friend, one of the finest and profoundest philosophers of his time, sitting in a closed house over a game of that form of solitaire appropriately denominated "Idiot's Delight."

"It is long since you have done me the honor to consult me," said the old scholar, smiling.

Kent outlined the case to him.

"You see," he said, "there is an obvious connection between the unknown body on the beach and the Blair tragedy."

"Poor Marjorie!" exclaimed the old man. "For her marriage I blame myself largely. When Marjorie Dorrance was left an orphan I was her nearest relative of an age and position such as to constitute a moral claim of guardianship. She visited here when she was eighteen—came like a flood of sunlight into this house. A beautiful vivid girl, half child, half woman; with a beautiful vivid mind. When I returned from one of my journeys into the past I found that Marjorie was engaged to that wretched creature. Now, he is dead. Let be. I have seen little of her in late years. God grant the life with him has not crushed out of her all her sweetness and happiness."

"While I am no judge of women," said Kent judiciously, "I should venture to aver that it hasn't. But about calling on her—my being a stranger, you see—and in the first days of her widowhood—social conventions, and that sort of thing."

"Mist and moonshine, my dear sir! Moonshine and mist! Marjorie feels no grief. She will pretend to none—not even to herself. I will take you to her tomorrow."

"Blair ill treated her?" asked Kent.

"Oh, ill treatment! That is a wide term. I believe that the poor weakling did his best to keep faith and honor. But ropes of mud are strong. Those with which he had bound himself drew him resistlessly back to the sewers. Here was but a marriage of glamor at best."

"Does she know anything of the manner of Blair's death?"

"No one knows much of it, from what I understand, unless it be Alexander Blair. One of the family who went to Hedgerow house for the funeral called upon me as a courtesy due to Mrs. Blair's nearest relative, Alexander Blair, he said, was reticent. His dread of publicity is notorious. But from what he, the relative, could ascertain the affair was substantially this: On the evening before the woman's body was found Wilfrid Blair, who had been exhibiting symptoms of melancholia, left the house secretly. No one saw him go, but about the time that he left the unknown woman was seen in the vicinity of Hedgerow house."

"By whom?"

"By a half breed Indian, a devoted servant of the family, who was practically young Blair's body servant."

"Gansett Jim! That helps to explain."

"Whether or not Wilfrid Blair had arranged a meeting with this woman is not known. As you know, she was found with her skull crushed on the sea beach. Blair was afterward discovered by his half breed servant mortally injured and was brought home to die."

"That is Alexander Blair's version of the tragedy?"

"As I understand it."

"Wilfrid Blair never was brought home."

"Ah? In any case Alexander Blair is striving to conceal some scandal, the nature of which I have no wish to guess. By the way, I should have added that he suspects a third person, an artist, resident not far from his place, of being his son's assailant."

"Francis Sedgwick?"

"You know the man?"

"It is on his behalf that I am acting," replied Kent.

That Weak Back

accompanied by pain here or there—extreme nervousness—sleeplessness—may be faint spells—or spasms—all are signals of distress for a woman. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood—passing from womanhood to motherhood—or later suffering from that change into middle life which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nerve prescribed for just such cases, by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women.

STATED DRY DRAFT PLATFORM

Prohibitionists of Illinois in Convention Today at Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., July 9.—The prohibitionists of Illinois are holding their state convention in Springfield. The sessions will continue through today. A senator will be nominated, probably Dan R. Sheen of Peoria. A full state, congressional and legislative ticket will be nominated and many county conferences will fill out county tickets. The platform favors the initiative, referendum and recall, woman's suffrage, national prohibition, state constitution revision and the extension of the powers of injunction to close disorderly houses. A general attack will be made upon local officials who have failed to enforce the liquor laws in dry territory.

DAVID ROSE FIGHTS GUARDS

Chicago Ballot "Fixer" Protests Clipping of Hair at Joliet.

Joliet, Ill., July 9.—David Rose, convicted Chicago ballot-box "fixer," was secretly rushed from the Cook county jail to the Illinois state penitentiary here, where he will serve an indeterminate sentence.

Rose, well dressed and aristocratic, fought his guards when he was forced into the Berthillon room of the prison. He begged for an hour's time, and said his friends were on their way from Chicago with a writ of superseadeas. In spite of his violent protests his hair was cut and he was given a cell.

SENATORIAL FIGHT IS PUT UP TO W. J. BRYAN

Several Candidates Wish Him to Name Anti-Sullivanite.

Chicago, July 9.—"Let Bryan do it," is the latest suggested solution of the Democratic senatorial mess.

State Senator Kent E. Keller is the official sponsor for the plan put up to all of the senatorial aspirants except Roger C. Sullivan that Secretary of State Bryan be authorized to choose one man to oppose Sullivan and that all other candidates thereupon withdraw.

It is believed that all of the senatorial candidates now in the field will agree to Senator Keller's suggestion except Secretary of State Harry Woods, Lieutenant Governor Barzatz O'Hara and Congressman at Large Lawrence B. Stringer. This would leave as parties to the agreement Carl S. Vrooman of Bloomington, Frank D. Comerford of Chicago, Senator W. Duff Piercy of Mount Vernon, and Senator Keller himself. John Z. White already has quit the senatorial race and is a candidate for congressman at large.

Man of Spirit.

Few persons ever stop to consider, says the Journal of the American Medical Association, that when they speak of "a man of spirit" they are really, however unwittingly, employing the language of the days of Claudius Galen, a noted Roman physician, born A. D. 130. That the term is yet used is testimony that the old doctrine of spirits is not obsolete. Galen perhaps had a conception of nerve trunks as conductors of something—he called it spirits—to and from the brain and spinal cord. The natural spirits were that property which gave to blood the capacity of nourishing the tissues of the body. The vital spirits were acquired in the heart; and when at last the blood with its vital spirits went to the brain and experienced a sort of refinement for the last time, the animal spirits were separated from it and carried to the body by the nerve trunks. The animal spirits of Galen have become the nerve impulses of today. These are not electricity, but they produce it, and can be manifested by it.

DEMOCRATS GO OVER TO MOOSE

District Committee of Louisiana Flops in a Body.

DISPLEASED BY SUGAR TARIFF

It is Said New Law on Lumber and Rice is Also Objectionable to Those Interests—Expected Split in Third District Will Extend Over State of Louisiana.

Washington, July 9.—Democratic Leaders from the south were stunned by the news received from the Third Louisiana district where the Democratic committee went over to the Bull Moose party in a body. Louisiana Democrats are out of tune with the Wilson administration and are ripe for a revolt. The split in the Third district is expected to extend throughout the state and a delegation of Progressive members from Louisiana have been appointed to take it up.

They are W. L. Rogers, Edwin Broussard, John Marks, Samuel Le Plane and W. T. Peterman. Mr. Broussard is the youngest brother of Senator-elect Broussard.

Sugar Tariff Causes It.

Some Louisiana Democrats declare that the movement for the destruction of the Democratic party is bound to sweep over the state. The third district leads the revolt. It was explained here, because the Democratic sugar tariff has caused ruin to the industry in that section. The rice and lumber industries also have been hard hit by the tariff.

HENWOOD DENIED 3D TRIAL

Slayer of George E. Copeland Loses Fight for Life.

Denver, Colo., July 9.—Harold F. Henwood, under sentence of death for the killing of George E. Copeland, was denied a third trial by the state supreme court. Copeland was fatally wounded the night of May 24, 1911, when Henwood shot Sylvester L. von Phil, a St. Louis aeronaut, in a barroom of a local hotel.

Henwood and von Phil had quarreled over letters written to von Phil by Mrs. Isabelle Patterson Springer, then the wife of John W. Springer, a wealthy stockman and banker. Less than two weeks after the shooting Springer was given a divorce.

Held to U. S. Court.

Fond Du Lac, Wis., July 9.—Louis Sonntag, secretary of the Wisconsin Association of Master Plumbers and indicted for violation of the anti-trust law, was bound over for trial in the federal court at Des Moines under bonds of $5,000.

Dustbane

catches dust, cleans floors and brightens carpets. It is put up in 10c and 25c cans. They claim that the 25c tin contains enough to sweep a six room house for two months.

They have authorized us to place a 25c can in your home for a weeks trial. If satisfactory you are to pay for it, if not and you sign a slip so stating that we may send to them, they will pay us for the partly used can.

This is a fair offer. Telephone us and we will bring you the trial can.
